Vote By Mail for Secure Elections in 2020 — and Beyond

A Step-by-Step Guide for Alaska

In-depth materials and guidelines for local election administrators, secretaries of states, legislators, and advocates to help Alaska handle more mailed-out ballots.

Voting in Alaska

There are more than 600,000 registered voters in Alaska. Alaska has no counties; the state Division of Elections runs statewide elections. In 2018, 8 percent of Alaskans voted by mail in statewide elections. Anchorage, with more than one-third of the state’s population, has been running its municipal elections all by mail for several years. Alaska Democrats ran the 2020 primary completely by mail, with ranked choice ballots. The party mailed ranked choice ballots to all registered democrats, and nearly 30 percent cast votes, almost double the number as in the 2016 democratic caucus.

The state legislature authorized Lieutenant Governor Kevin Meyer to move the August primary and November general elections to all mail races. But in May, Meyer announced that in-person voting would proceed, at least for the August primary, with enhanced outreach efforts to encourage absentee voting. The Division of Elections will send every registered voter age of 65 and older an absentee ballot application in advance of the August election.

Alaska’s grade for Vote By Mail preparedness

Grades based on 15 factors covering

- Ease of access
- Ballot security
- Election infrastructure
- Administrative efficiency

Ways in which Alaska is already prepared

- Allows any voter to request an absentee ballot.
- Is a member of the Electronic Registration Information Center (ERIC).
- Allows the Division of Elections to start processing ballots one week before Election Day.
- Accepts mailed ballots postmarked on Election Day.
- Allows voters to register and request an absentee ballot online.
- Automatically registers voters.
Who We Are
Sightline is a nonpartisan nonprofit think tank with a 25-year history. We are based in the Pacific Northwest, where many states already conduct all-mail elections. We are grateful for feedback and research from many policy experts, elections officials, and leaders committed to safe, secure democracy, particularly the National Conference of State Legislators and the National Vote at Home Institute.

The Moment
American election officials face an urgent challenge to secure the 2020 elections. As poll workers and voters grapple with the coronavirus pandemic, many jurisdictions are already unable to find enough workers to run their usual polling places, and many Americans are seeking to cast their ballot from home, rather than risk contagion in a crowded polling place in November.

About This Resource
We hope that Alaska election officials, advocates, and legislators will find this resource useful as they work to handle more Vote By Mail ballots in 2020 and beyond.

Local election officials and secretaries of state will find in-depth information including practical nuts-and-bolts advice, materials and guidelines from election administrators with experience in conducting all-mail elections, and information about vendors and costs.

Legislators will find tried-and-tested policies, along with sample language from states that have successfully implemented those policies. Even if Alaska lawmakers don’t act in time for November 2020, the experience of hastily trying to secure elections this year may create a greater political appetite for reforms to strengthen democracy in Alaska beyond 2020.

16. Allow community organizations to collect and deliver sealed ballots. 24
For Local Election Officials

1. Coordinate with USPS®.
To ensure that the United States Postal Service (USPS) is able to process ballots in a timely manner, election administrators can contact their local USPS election mail coordinator to discuss the design, timing and volume of election materials. USPS can review all materials to ensure that the design, wording, and colors meet their guidelines, and sign off on the printer’s proofs. Election administrators can also discuss the date, time, and location for delivery of ballots to the post office to ensure that the post office is prepared. For example, before each election, King County, Washington, election administrators send a letter to USPS alerting them to the number, type, and timing of ballots they expect to deliver.

USPS may also be able to help election administrators access the National Change of Address Linkage (NCOA) to update voters’ addresses. Alaska is already a member of the Electronic Registration Information Center (ERIC), which uses NCOA data to help Alaska keep voter lists up to date. However, because voters may have moved since the last update, local officials can access NCOA for their voters’ latest address information. Having the most up-to-date addresses will ensure that each ballot reaches the right voter, reducing the costs of re-mailing ballots.

2. Design ballots and envelopes that are easy to use.

Well-designed envelopes, ballots, forms, and instructions help voters fill out their ballots and return them without mistakes, decreasing processing time and minimizing the chance that ballots will be flagged, thrown out, or not counted. In contrast, poorly designed instructions or ballots may cause voters to fill out their ballot incorrectly or incompletely so that their vote is not counted.\(^\text{13}\)

Ensure that election materials are easy so that voters who may be voting by mail for the first time don’t make mistakes. For example, those who are new to mailing their ballots may not know that they need to sign the outside of their envelope, so putting their name under the signature line and providing simple and clear instructions to sign there can help prompt them and reduce the number of ballots that need extra processing time. (Also, pre-filling the absentee ballot request form can help voters complete it correctly [see Recommendation 9].)

Color-coded envelopes can help USPS sort the mail quickly and accurately, and including space for voters’ contact information can help election officials reach voters promptly in the event of a missing signature or discrepancy.

Another important way to assist voters is to design and distribute voter education booklets to help guide them through the process. (For example, when Anchorage, Alaska, moved to all-mail elections in 2018, in addition to a robust community education campaign and a voter information flyer, the city extended an elections call center’s hours in the month leading up to the election.) 3. Provide secure drop boxes.

In states that mail out all ballots, most voters return them to secure drop boxes, rather than via USPS. To accommodate this, counties should provide enough drop boxes for all voters and make them easily accessible. Each county should have at least one box available 24/7; more populous counties should aim to have one drop box per 10,000 voters. Drop boxes are especially important because Alaska requires receipt of ballots up to Election Day. Voters who wish to submit their ballot after the mail cutoff date can take it to a drop box.

Many jurisdictions site some drop boxes inside government buildings. However, boxes available 24/7 are more frequently used than those inside buildings only open during business hours. Outside drop boxes need to be in well-lit areas monitored by security cameras. Boxes should also be secure, with only election officials allowed to access ballots.

In 2018 Oregon and Washington, two states that mail out all ballots, had one drop box per 8,800 and 10,000 voters, respectively. King County, Washington, strategically sited its drop boxes to ensure that 95 percent of voters’ addresses were within three miles of a box. (However, election officials should be prepared for voters to drop off ballots in precincts and jurisdictions other than their own.) Election administrators should set up drop boxes approximately one month before elections, publicize locations on their website, and share them with local news outlets.

Cost/Savings

- Drop boxes in King County, Washington, cost $5,235 each, and the installation of 37 drop boxes cost around $20,000.31
- In Pierce County, Washington, the purchase and installation of each drop box costs between $7,000 and $10,000.
- Other counties have paid between $2,100 and $3,500 to purchase and install drop boxes. Operational costs per box appear to be anywhere between $300 to $4,000 per box, per election season.32

4. Provide Election Day vote centers for in-person voting.
Counties that mail out all or most ballots should still provide in-person voting locations for those who prefer to vote in person, need additional assistance, or do not have a reliable mailing address. Each county should have at least one in-person vote center (it could be the county elections office), and more populous counties should aim to have one center per 30,000 voters. These locations will need an electronic poll book and the ability to print ballots on demand.

Even states that conduct elections completely by mail still offer in-person options. California mandates one vote center per 1,000 voters. In Oregon, voters can cast their ballots in person at any county elections office. And though Colorado still opens vote centers on Election Day, the state was able to reduce the number of poll workers from 16,000 to fewer than 4,00042 after implementing Vote By Mail.43 The shift decreased labor cost per vote from $4.71 to $1.96.44

According to the US Government Accountability Office (GAO), costs for polling sites can range from no added cost (if using an existing agency facility) to $300 per day to rent a location.45 Employee costs to staff a vote center can range from $100 to $235 per day.46

5. Consider using a professional printer and ballot sorter.

Many election administrators use professional printers and ballot sorters, rather than printing ballots, stuffing envelopes, and sorting them in-house. This can save money and increase staff efficiency. It might also mitigate problems voters have experienced during their primaries, such as in Georgia,\textsuperscript{53} where voters requested ballots but did not receive them, or in New York,\textsuperscript{54} where ballots did not include a return envelope. Both states were relying on overworked workers who did not have much experience in printing, stuffing, and mailing ballot envelopes, rather than hiring a professional service that has printed, stuffed, and mailed ballot envelopes many times and has quality control practices in place.

According to the Brennan Center, printing costs per ballot ranges from $0.21 to $0.35 cents per ballot. Volume efficiencies in moving to a Vote By Mail system result in lower per-voter printing costs. In Colorado, total printing costs declined from $6.86 to $3.04 per voter after implementing Vote By Mail.

6. Count ballots at a secure centralized facility.

Counting ballots in a secure centralized facility enhances election security, transparency, and efficiency. Election administrators in King County, Washington, count ballots in guarded facilities with continuous security camera monitoring in addition to using their ballot tracking system (see Recommendation 8). Having security surveillance equipment in ballot processing areas and streaming the footage online allows voters to see for themselves how secure and transparent a jurisdiction’s vote-counting procedures are. As with all election procedures, prepare for Election Day by rehearsing processes and timing various stages.

To the extent possible according to Alaska law, counties that don’t have an appropriate facility for secure and centralized ballot processing could coordinate with counties that do.

7. Include a postage-prepaid return envelope.

Seventeen states\(^{68}\) require the state government to provide envelopes with prepaid return postage for absentee ballots. Twenty-two states\(^{69}\) leave it up to counties whether they will pay for return postage, either by explicitly giving counties the option or by saying nothing in legislation about who pays postage. Providing prepaid return postage makes voting easier and can improve voter turnout because voters can focus on voting, not on locating stamps, weighing their ballot, or going to the post office to find out how much mailing the ballot will cost (which can vary from one stamp to three First-Class stamps, depending on the weight of the ballot).\(^{70}\) Prepaid return postage costs around $0.80 per voter.\(^{71}\)

Just 10 states,\(^{72}\) Alaska, require voters to pay for postage, meaning that local officials are prohibited from providing prepaid return postage. The Alaska legislature would need to

For Alaska’s Secretary of State

Clerks could independently implement each of these recommendations, but a coordinated statewide effort would be more effective.

8. Use a comprehensive system to track ballots.
Comprehensive ballot tracking improves the security of absentee ballots and boosts voter confidence in mailed-out ballots. The service, offered by companies like Ballot Scout and BallotTrax, uses intelligent barcodes to track every ballot and envelope, minimizing the risk of stolen ballots or ones that have been tampered with. It also increases transparency and accountability because voters can easily track when their ballot is in transit, received by election officials, and counted.

Ten states require tracking for absentee ballots, and 30 others have some form of ballot tracking, though not required by statute. These tracking services may not be comprehensive, however. For example, in many states, voters can look up whether their ballot has been mailed to them but may not be able to find out if it has been accepted. In contrast, Ballot Scout and BallotTrax’s comprehensive services can text voters with updates on every step in their ballot’s journey—when it’s mailed, when it arrives at their residence, when it’s in transit, and when it’s been accepted. Tracking services give voters a much higher degree of confidence in the system. Such confidence could be especially important this year, when many voters will be voting absentee for the first time and questions are swirling about the security of mailed ballots.

By implementing a comprehensive ballot tracking system, Alaska can avoid problems such as those Wisconsin experienced in its April 2020 primary. If Wisconsin election officials had had comprehensive secure ballot tracking in place, they would have seen that thousands of mailed-out ballots had gotten stuck in mail processing centers. Getting this information would have given officials the opportunity to contact USPS and address the problem. Instead, thousands of voters were denied the ability to safely vote at home even though they had requested their ballot in time.

Ballot tracking is cost effective. For many states, depending on the number of voters and other implementation details, comprehensive ballot-tracking may cost around $50,000 per

9. Mail absentee application forms to all registered voters.

Mailing absentee application forms to every registered voter in Alaska will increase absentee voting, reducing crowds on Election Day and helping to slow the spread of COVID-19. Several counties in Wisconsin mailed out absentee ballot applications in advance of the April 2020 primary to great success: voter turnout was 67 percent\(^{89}\) (a high turnout for a primary), and 90 percent of the ballots cast were absentee, leaving polling places less crowded for the few who voted in person.\(^{90}\)

As in Wisconsin, Alaska’s local officials could individually choose to mail application forms to voters in their jurisdiction, but the mailing would be more effective as a coordinated statewide effort.

In addition to boosting absentee voting rates, mailing application forms can provide two benefits: the signed form would provide election administrators with a signature to use when verifying the ballot (see Recommendation 13), and it would help clerks update voter addresses so that more ballots will reach voters in November. To allow enough time for undeliverables to get back to the elections office and for clerks to follow up and find voters’ current mailing address, aim to mail application forms at least two months before the election. To get a higher level of uptake, pre-fill the forms with information on file, such as the voter’s name and address. Then voters can simply review and update the information as needed, and then sign and return the form. Use plain language to help voters fill out the form correctly, which will save clerks time (see Recommendation 2).

Alaska law allows the secretary of state (or individual clerks) to choose whether to send applications to voters. The county would have to pay to print and mail the application forms, which should cost less than $2.00 per voter,91 and for the labor of processing the forms. Because Alaska requires most voters to fill out an absentee ballot application for every election, election officials would need to pay to mail and process forms again in August and November. To save local officials' substantial cost of mailing and processing absentee application forms for each election, Alaska’s legislature could allow a “single sign-up” option so that voters who want to continue voting by mail can do so without repeated paperwork (see Recommendation 12).

10. Give voters sufficient opportunity to cure signature problems.
If a voter forgets to sign their ballot return envelope or if their signature doesn’t match the one(s) on file, they deserve the chance to correct the error and have their vote count. Nineteen states93 have laws requiring clerks to notify voters if there is a problem with their signature and then give voters an opportunity to cure.

Unfortunately, Alaska does not have a formal process to give voters an opportunity to cure. To prevent absentee voters from being unintentionally disenfranchised due to a problem with the signature on their envelope, the Alaska legislature could pass a law requiring clerks to notify voters of problems with their signature and lay out a process for voters to cure. In the absence of such a state law, each clerk could implement their own process to notify voters of problems and give them a chance to cure.

The process has two main steps: first, election officials would notify the voter of any problems with their signature. Ideally, notice would be given within 24 hours of their ballot being flagged. To ensure that they receive the notice, officials could send it via multiple channels, such as mail, phone, email, and text message, if you have the voter’s contact information. (Text notification can be included in ballot-tracking services. See Recommendation 8.)

Second, allow the voter to cure. You can give voters the option to visit an elections office or vote center and re-sign the ballot or show identification. However, if visiting an office in person is their only option, voters may be understandably upset, especially during a pandemic, so you could offer them other options, such as signing an affidavit affirming their identity and sending it via mail, email, or text message.\textsuperscript{94} The National Vote At Home Institute recommends giving voters at least three business days after Election Day to cure.\textsuperscript{95}

Example Legislative Language

Arizona Revised Statutes 16-550. Receipt of voter’s ballot; cure period.\textsuperscript{96}
Arizona allows signatures to be corrected until the fifth business day after the election for elections that include federal offices and until the third business day for all other elections. Election officials must make reasonable efforts to contact the voter.

California Elections Code § 3019(c)-(e). Vote by Mail Application and Voting Procedures.\textsuperscript{97}
Election officials must notify voters at least eight days prior to certification if signatures need verification. Voters can verify signatures until 5 p.m. two days prior to election certification. Voters can mail, email, fax, or hand-deliver verification. If the signatures match, then the voter’s signature is updated for future elections.

Hawaii Revised Statutes § 11-106. Deficient return identification envelopes.\textsuperscript{98}
Election clerks must notify voters by mail, email, or telephone. Voters have five business days after Election Day to cure the deficiency.

Ohio Revised Code 3509.06 (E). Counting absent voters’ ballots.\textsuperscript{99}
Voters may correct signatures or other identifying information until the seventh day after Election Day. Voters must be notified by mail and may provide information by mail or in person.

For Lawmakers

11. Account for voters with nontraditional addresses.
Native American voters living on tribal lands often have mailing addresses that don’t adhere to USPS standards, making it difficult for them to register to vote and receive ballots in the mail. They may have many family members living at the same address, and some states may not allow them all to receive a ballot, in an attempt to protect against fraudulent ballot requests. Or these voters may use a USPS box to receive mail but live far from the nearest post office or election center, making it more difficult to receive and return their ballot in a timely fashion. Eligible voters experiencing homelessness or housing insecurity also may not have a home address. Alaska should make sure these voters can receive a ballot and vote securely.

Alaska should allow multiple eligible voters to use the same mailing address. Living with others to save housing costs should not diminish any American’s right to vote. Alaska can allow Native Americans to designate a building on the Nation’s land to receive their ballot. Especially in areas where people live far from a post office, election administrators can temporarily install drop boxes or vote centers on tribal lands to ensure that voters have viable options for returning their ballots.

Alaska can allow homeless community members to receive their ballots at a shelter, park, motor home, or other identifiable location. As an alternative, homeless voters can list the county elections office as their mailing address and get their ballot in person there. They can then return their ballot to the elections office or a secure drop box.

Example Legislative Language

Colorado Revised Statutes 1-2-102. Rules for determining residence.

For voter registration residence, voters can identify a physical location in the county that they return to regularly, such as a shelter, services provider, park, campground, vacant lot, or business. If that location does not have an address, voters must also provide a mailing address.

Oregon Revised Statutes 247.038. Registration of person who is homeless or resides in identifiable location.\(^{108}\)

Individuals who are homeless or reside in shelters, vehicles, marinas, or other identifiable locations cannot be denied the opportunity to register to vote. Residence addresses can be descriptions of the person’s physical location or the office of the county clerk.

Revised Code of Washington 29A.08.112. Voters without traditional residential addresses.\(^{109}\)

Voter registration accepts nontraditional addresses, defined as narrative descriptions of the voter’s physical location. No person can be disqualified for lacking a traditional address. Voters must provide a mailing address. Tribes may designate a government building to serve as a mailing address for residents.

12. Give voters a “single sign-up” option.

Twelve states plus DC give voters a “single sign-up” option whereby they can apply once to vote absentee and permanently continue to receive ballots in the mail unless they are removed from the permanent absentee voter list. These states include the five that conduct all-mail elections, plus Arizona, California, Michigan, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania and DC. Another six states\(^{113}\) maintain a permanent absentee voter list for certain voters (usually those who are elderly and/or disabled).\(^{114}\)

However, 32 states require all voters to apply for an absentee ballot before every election or every two years (Alaska requires most voters to apply once per year). But nearly half or even two-thirds of absentee ballot applicants also applied to vote absentee in the last major election cycle. If these voters want to keep getting their ballot in the mail, they have to fill out paperwork again and again. This is not only a burden for the voter but also a drain on election officials who must process and enter application data every year. Giving voters the option to sign up for a permanent absentee ballot could minimize paperwork, cut costs, and save time.

The potential savings are significant. According to a US GAO report, in the 2008 presidential election, Contra Costa County, California, spent $1.37 per ballot to process permanent absentee ballots, versus $10.64 per ballot to process each nonpermanent absentee ballot. Much of the nearly eightfold administrative cost increase came from handling individual ballot requests.

Alaska’s 2020 Democratic primary was conducted entirely by mail. Although most or all of those voters may wish to vote absentee again in November, they will all have to reapply to do so. If the Alaska legislature acts quickly, it could create a “single sign-up” option in 2020 and authorize election officials to send a postcard to any voter who already requested an absentee ballot this year, asking if they want to opt in to continue receiving ballots by mail. This change would save clerks and voters’ time and resources during this busy year.

Example Legislative Language

Arizona Revised Statutes 16-544. Permanent early voting list; civil penalty; violation; classification.

Voters can request permanent absentee ballots to in-state addresses in writing or through an online portal. Notices are sent before elections to allow voters to change their address or opt out of absentee voting. If the notice is undeliverable, the voter is removed from the permanent absentee list.

California Elections Code 3206. Permanent Vote by Mail Application and Procedures.

In counties that do not offer all-mail elections, voters may request to be on the permanent Vote By Mail list. Voters can apply online. Permanent status ends if the voter does not vote in four consecutive statewide general elections.

Montana Code Annotated 13-13-212. Application for absentee ballot—special provisions—absentee ballot list for subsequent elections.117

Voters can request permanent absentee ballots. They will be mailed ballots for subsequent elections as long as they have not filed a change of address with USPS. If they have already done so, they are sent a form to request an address update.

New Jersey Statutes Annotated 19:63-3(a)(1) Procedure for user of mail-in ballot.118

Voters may choose to receive mail-in ballots for all future elections. Voters can request in writing if they wish to no longer receive mail-in ballots.

Nevada Revised Statutes § 293.3165(1) Specialized procedure to request absent ballot for all elections at which registered voter is eligible to vote; requirements for issuing, voting and returning such absent ballot.119

Nevada allows all voters to receive absentee ballots for all future elections. If after the request submitted the ballot is undeliverable or the voter has had their registration cancelled under NRS 293.530, the elections office may not mail the absentee ballot.120

13. Use the voter’s signature to validate the ballot.

The overwhelming majority of states (41 states and DC) use a voter’s signature to validate their identity. Alaska is one of only a handful that requires voters to get a notary or witness to sign their ballot.122 This is an ineffective barrier to fraud, since a would-be fraudster could probably find at least one accomplice. Or a voter’s unwitting neighbor might happily serve as a witness but not ask to see their birth certificate to verify their identity. Fraud could even be linked to voter coercion as voters are forced to involve someone else in completing their ballot. The practice is also a dangerous requirement during the time of coronavirus because it requires voters to have contact with a witness.

Requiring voters to sign their own ballot and matching their signature against one or more signatures on record, such as the DMV or voter registration application, is simpler for voters and very effective against fraud. The more reference signatures available, the better the system works. The resources below can help you implement best practices to train signature verifiers. Note that requiring an “exact match” level of scrutiny is not a best practice and could be struck down in court, as it was in a lawsuit in Georgia.123

Voters’ signatures change over time, so if the state doesn’t have a recent signature on file, ask the voter to update it. The King County, Washington, elections administrator sends voters a Signature Update Form. And in preparation for moving to an all-mail election, Hawaii sent a postcard to all registered voters asking for an updated signature for reference.124

14. Allow voters to request replacement ballots online.

Occasionally, voters might lose, destroy, spoil, or never receive their ballot in the mail. These voters need to be able to quickly, conveniently, and securely request a replacement. To best accommodate voters, especially during the pandemic, county clerks can give voters the option to request a replacement ballot not only in person but also in writing, over the phone, or online.

To ensure security, election officials should only send replacement ballots once they confirm that the voter has not already voted. Unique barcodes on each ballot will ensure that only one ballot per voter is counted (see Recommendation 8). Each voter will only be able to vote once; if an election official receives two ballots with the same unique barcode, only the first one received will be counted.

Printing and mailing ballots costs between $1.26 and $2.35. Alaska can reduce the need for replacement ballots by keeping voter records up to date and making it easy for voters to update their address online (see Recommendation 1).

15. Allow early in-person voting options.

Twenty-six states allow voters to vote in person in the days and weeks leading up to Election Day, ranging from 7 days in DC to 40 days in Illinois. Alaska allows only 15 days of early voting. While the National Vote at Home Institute recommends a minimum of 10 days of early voting,\(^{143}\) ideally Alaska could allow more than 3 weeks of early voting to give voters the option to vote in person while mitigating coronavirus-related public health risks of in-person voting by spreading the crowds out over weeks instead of pushing all voters to the polls on Election Day. Your governor may be able to use emergency powers to extend early voting.\(^{144}\)

Early voting also allows voters more options of when to vote. Many people have work schedules that make it difficult to vote on a Tuesday. Allowing the option of voting on any day of the week or month leading up to Election Day will help enfranchise more voters.

Example Legislative Language

Delaware Code Title 15 Chapter 54. Early Voting.

Requires early-voting locations to be open at least 10 days prior to Election Day, including Saturday and Sunday. Requires early voting locations to be publicly announced 30 days before each election. Requires each early voting location to be open at least eight hours per day between 7:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m.

16. Allow community organizations to collect and deliver sealed ballots.

Twenty states allow anyone to deliver another voter’s sealed and signed ballot. By allowing community organizations to help deliver sealed and signed ballots, Alaska can increase voter turnout and help further enfranchise voters who face barriers to voting. This policy can help voters who lack access to a vehicle or who do not have access to consistent mail service.

Ballot tracking and robust signature verification can prevent would-be ballot harvesters from collecting blank ballots and completing them. Fraudsters can’t access voters’ signature files, and voters who haven’t received their ballots will notice if the tracking system reports their ballot as delivered and returned. Working with get-out-the-vote organizers who collect ballots from rural reservations and transport them to election offices is often the only way Native Americans can vote.

Example Legislative Language:

Oregon Revised Statutes 254.470 (6)(d). Procedures for conducting election by mail.

Allows anyone to deliver a completed and sealed ballot as long as they do so within two days of receiving the ballot from the voter.
